To Sheep farmers and the Public in general.

S. C. Calvert's Phenyline & Vercbanus Sheep Salve

The great reputation these specifics have enjoyed in every part of the country of their extraordinary success in all cases where they have been applied, has induced the proprietor to increase them in this market on account of the immense sheep farming interest of the Plata, the terrible sheep scabs annexes to obviate in future the enormous losses they sustain yearly, not only in the late duration of the Sheep, but also, as frequently happens, the loss of the animal itself. Nil nisi bonum, nil vere nisi audendo vere.—Cicero.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 7 1863.

REVISTA DE B AYRES.

It would be doing an injustice to this very useful monthly magazine, were we to imitate our colleagues, by simply giving a table of its contents. The good opinion which it elicited from us, on its first appearance, is increased, as we view the highly literary tone, and varied selection of subjects which continue to be its characteristics in this its 3rd number.

The memories of Gen. San Martin form the opening chapter, and will be read with interest, following the course of the Argentine liberator from his cradle down to the signal victory of Chacabuco. It embraces episodes of the valiant O'Higgins, Las Heras, Freyre and others, narrating a gallant deed by our renowned countryman Admiral Brown, who, after destroying the Spanish fleet off Montevideo sailed under the enemies' batteries and enlisted the Argentine flag with 21 guns. The biographer is Bernardo Irigoyen, who does full merit to his subject.

The history of Buenos Ayres [1602-1603] gives a census of the city 22 years after its foundation, when its inhabitants numbered 500, including 21 men bearing arms who were reviewed in the Plaza (Victoria); one of the number, Mr. Peter Moran, was an Irishman. There were 18 Francis-can friars, and the Mer-ced convent was founded with 2 monks. Several Portugu ese and 1 Italian were expelled for entering the country without the king's permission; and the vice-roy Senavdra took a trip to Asuncion about this time. A square of ground was set apart for the Custom-house, and funds assigned to erect a Cabildo. The city limits were enlarged towards the South. A royal decree limited the exports to 2,000 fanegas flour, 500 cwt. beef, and 500 cwt. tallow [per] annum. The introduction of Cordoba flour was prohibited: the slave trade was in full force.

M. de Mousey continues his Passes of the Andes, describing that of Copiapo with its railway and mineral treasures; also those of Famatina and San Juan, all more dangerous than Tupungato, and varying from 10,000 to 18,000 feet in height almost wholly unprotected from the elements.

Annals of the Foundling-hospital, by Dr. Quesada, place its foundation August 7th in 1779 by the Vice-queen Vertiz, at the corner of calles Potosi & Peru, under charge of Don Martin Sarratea. Hereby were rescued, in 22 years succeeding, 2017 children, of the class formerly suffered to perish of cold or hunger in the streets. To support the in titute, the old Jesuit printing-office of Cordoba was set up in connexion, under the care of Captain Sotoca, with a monopoly for 10 years.

The first books here printed were the Christian Doctrine and Primer, sold at $4 1|2 per gross, and 9 reals per dozen respectively. The hospital census were 3211 per annum, by &c, leaving a deficit, which induced the committee to ask permission of the Spanish crown, for selling mulatto foundlings as "slaves. Philip generously refused to associate charity with slavery, and assigned the licenses, for eating meat in Lent, to meet the deficit. After the Independence, private families were allowed to undertake rearing them as "protegee," there being then over 700 in the asylum. In 1823 the Beneficence Society of charitable ladies was formed, taking the house into their special care. During the French blockade—1837—Rosas closed the hospital, distributing its inmates among respectable families. On March 10th, 1852, it was re-opened, and has since rendered good service to these little "innocents, being at present managed by the French Sisters of Charity.

The "Chronicle of American Events, for July," is edited by Dr Navarro Viola, and relates, among other facts, the Declaration of Independence at Tucuman, and General Whitelock's capitulation.

There is an Ode to Mexico, by Carlos Guido, relative to the present French invasion. Also a Log-book from Southampton to Lima, by M. Samper: and a Biography of Signor Octavio Mossotti, founder of our city Observatory, recently deceased at Pavia. Notices of Torres Caicedo and his works, give some particulars concerning the editor of the "Correo de Ultramar," who is a native of New Granada, edited papers at 17 years of age, and has served both as Secretary of Legation and journalist.

General Yrisrte's Life of Carrera is reviewed by Dr N Viola, in rather flattering terms

There is a supplement of 16 pages, on the origin of some Indian tribes, by D Manuel Trelles: making the present volume 176 pages, which is, indeed, excellent value, even materially for the subscription—$30. We are glad to perceive the Paraguayan Government has ordered 50 copies, Governo Saavedra 15, and President Mitre 6 copies. The work is most deserving of public protection, foreign as well as native.

THE LAST CORDOVA REVOLUTION.

Few persons have very clear ideas on the 'emeute' which precipitated Dr. Posse from power and paved the way for Peñaloza's short-lived reign. The matter was in popular estimation something between a imbecille and a despot, and although General Paz's mere crushed the rebellion he fulfilled the object, for we find a subsidized General installed in the person of Gen. O'Campo. But Dr. Posse, while resigning with a bad grace, has a grudge against all who have the frankness to blame him for the late troubles; and he seeks to rank a respectable citizen, Don Tomas Peñaloza in the category of rebels. In so ignominious a task he found a ready and willing ally in the 'Nacional' of this city, whose sole mission would seem to be—throwing dirt at everyone of different sentiments

Sor Peñaloza is unhappily a namesake of the Cinclo, but neither his general character nor his conduct during the Cordoba revolution, places him in any other light than that of a "model citizen," a distinction to which Dr. Posse and the 'Nacional' writers have yet to aspire. It is unnecessary to compare the justice of Sor. Peñaloza's sentiments with the foolish policy of his antagonist, for events have now ratified the former, and condemned the ex-Governor as a failure.

If we review the several rôle played by Dr Posse and Sor Peñaloza we shall find the former appear as an unsuccessful political gambler, and the latter as magnanimous patriot. It is notorious that Sor. Peñaloza exerted himself to prevent bloodshed, and saved the lives of some of our officers, in return for which the 'Nacional' styles him 'an eternal assassin.' His narrative is as follows:—

"On May 28th I arrived at Cordoba on family business, and on the 30th was begged to [intercede with Governo Posse for Oyarzabal, who was now two years confined, in irons, without trial reminded him that when he and I of his comrades were banished by Mendez, I procured their pardon of Urquiza. He promised me the case would soon be cancl ded.

"On June 10th, at 5 a.m., the revolution upset Dr Posse, being headed by Sergeant Luengo, who at once threw open the prisons and disarmed the police. At 6 an order was restored, the bands playing through the street to celebrate the event. I went to the Cabildo and found some 300 armed men. On inquiring about the revolt, a man came up to me and said—' I have upset the tyrant Posse for the sake of the invincible General Urquiza.' Hereon I told him that Urquiza and the National Government were of accord, and that the leaders should prevent all excesses, as some of the mob were drunk: that they had better at once communicate with General Mitre.

"At 10 a.m. Don Pio Achabal arrived, and proposed to make me Governor, but I declined having any part in the revolution, and he was at once appointed to the post. At noon the streets were crowded with armed men coming hither and thither. As I was every-where treated with the greatest respect, I re ered my indisposition with success to calm the agitation as I prevent disorders. I released from captivity Don Timoteo Gordillo, Don Alvaro Prado, Domingo Mendoza, Pedro Gordillo, and Don Carlos Boquet who had been all seized as friends of Posse. I saved Don Francisco Caballero from the fury of 10 drunken soldiers. The French consul begged me to save Colonel Rossetti and Lieutenant Morel of the National army who were concealed in his house. Meantime I urged the propriety of the rebels coming to an arrangement with Peña's party. Dr. Posse had disappeared, being disguised a time as a woman, again as a monk, and jumping over garden walls, instead of seeking to quiet the row."

"On the 10th a conference was held, but without hope of settlement, and Achabal told me he was about to write to Urquiza. This I condemned as a violation of his promise to treat with Pres. Mitre. He answered that the idea was only to gain time; I therefore refused to be party to such intrigues. Don Caceres Lopez then it formed me that men and arms were ordered me to make a counter revolution, which I firmly refused, this being treachery."

"At 1 p.m I asked the Governor to visit the prison with me: we found 50 odd persons confined, of whom I procured liberty for 22, including Isaac Martinez, Ramallo Gonzalez, one of General Paunero's officers, and others whose names I don't recollect. Same evening I demanded my passports, which the Governor at first refused, urging that my presence was greatly required in Cordoba. For the same reason Sor Gordillo made objection to provide me with horses. Having at length made ready for the journey, I started with my family and brother Nicholas in my carriage. Stopping about a league from the city, I returned on horseback at 8 p.m. and rescued from M. Bouquet's house, near the Plaza, both Colonel Rosetti and his side-de-camp, having provided them saddled horses in the suburbs. After half a league we met a guard of 50 men, who, on giving my name, suffered us to pass. At Rio Segundo we met Messrs. Lopez, Peña, and Bouquet, whom I took in my carriage to Rosario dropping Colonel Rosetti at Villa Nueva, where he joined the army.

The persons I saved, and indeed all Cordoba, are testimony of my conduct, as also that Posse was cause of all the disorders, and that the shameless calumniators of the 'Nacional' have inherited the evil tendencies of Rosas' Gacetta Mercantil' in a tacking fences citizens."

DR KEEN AND DR. GIBBINGS

There is an old saying "that little said is easy mended," but the truth of this proverb was never more strongly exemplified than in the present awkward position of Dr. Keen, the sen and co-editor of the Nacional.

In Wednesday evening's Nacional an article appeared to contradict a local event which, at the request of a subscriber, and one who termed himself a friend of Dr. Keen's family, was published in Tuesday's Standard.

The merits of Mr. Keen as an editor we leave the public to judge, but his astuteness as a lawyer we very much question. Mr. Keen comes before the public to assert his responsibility for the editorials of the paper of which he is the joint editor, a thing which every one knew, but the statement of Dr. Gibbinge, as published in the standard, he neither admits nor denies.

In order that our subscribers may properly judge of the merits of the case, we give the following history of the matter:—

An article appeared in the Nacional respecting a petition bearing 120 names, of which 80 were foreigners, favoring the Government to make a foreign loan for the reception of the currency, in which article it was stated "that the opinions or feelings of foreigners were of no value." This was taken by us, and by every foreigner in town as an insult, although Mr. Keen asserts it was intended for a compliment. As a matter of course we answered the article, as it deserved. Dr. Gibbings, an estanciero of Ranchos, happened to be in town at the time, and called upon us on Saturday evening, previous to his leaving next morning for the camp. Amongst other things, the Doctor distinctly stated that there had been considerable dispute in a certain English merchant's house in Calle Parque respecting Mr. Keen and the famous complimentary article in his paper; two or three parties were present whose names the Doctor gave us, and which we can publish if necessary.

Dr Gibbings regretted that we had imputed the article in question to Mr Keen, as he stated that Mr Keen had denied that he ever wrote the article, or had even seen it, previous to publication: furthermore, a council was held as to what was the best plan for Mr Keen to adopt to get out of the matter, and it was unanimously agreed that silence, on the part of the 'Nacional,' was the only course to pursue. We have every confidence that Dr Gibbings, in requesting us to make the remarks we did, was influenced only by the very best intentions, as he expressed himself most kindly towards Mr Keen and his family.

We call our readers' attention to one important fact, that Mr Keen has not contradicted one solitary statement of Dr Gibbings, but takes off to matters which the latter never very much dwelled.

Mr Keen has not asserted that he wrote the article; neither has he stated that he saw it previous to publication, but merely avers that he is not acquainted with Dr Gibbing, and that he, as co editor of the 'Nacional,' is responsible for the editorials, neith r of which statements the Doctor gainsays.

It may have been incautious, on the part of Dr Gibbings, to make himself so prominent in a matter, respecting which he had no possible interest, but we question very much the discretion of Mr Keen, in calling further attention to a subject which has necessitated, on his part, such ambiguous explanations.

EDITOR'S TABLE

Dr Gibbings is the man of the day. Unfortunately, he is at present out at his estancia, but we expect to hear from him in a few days. Dr. Keen, it appears, is not acquainted with Dr Gibbings, at least so he asserts. They will make each others acquaintanceship under rather extraordinary circumstances. Dr Gibbings, who is a thorough classical scholar, will probably, when he hears of the 'Nacional' affair, exclaim—" Quem Deus vult perdere prius dementat " If either of the editors of the 'Nacional' knew as much law as Dr Gibbings knows Greek, they would, in all probability, make more at the legal profession than as editors

The gas bills this month are made out according to the new tariff, and are so alarmingly high, that people will be obliged to take down the pipes and use Kerosene

Mr Davis has called upon us to know what about the municipality and the water supply. We are in total ignorance as to the state of the Municipal Board, but believe that the various projects are to be opened next month, when 20,000 dollars will be allotted to the lucky projector

The news by the steamer from Montevideo is very unimportant. About Flores there is nothing positive. One of the editors of the 'Siglo,' and two or three others, were arrested in the theatre for not wearing the blue ribbon: they have been liberated with a caution. We learn, upon good authority, that the new president of the Flores' committee has stated that it is the general conviction here that Flores, if he succeeds in making any kind of a position for himself on the Uruguay, will at once try and make terms with Berro, and that, therefore, the committee wish to send over Rivas.

Dr Berro-ueche's plan of defending the frontier against the Indians, is attracting general attention, an I highly approved of by all who study it. We hope President Mitre will take the same view of it and carry it out, we will then have nothing to fear from the savages

The gallant Admiral Warren is at present in Buenos Ayres. We salute and welcome him amongst us.

IMPORTANT NEWS.

We are happy to inform our readers that on yesterday 18 bales of superfine gimed Paraguay cotton were shipped for Antwerp. This cotton we believe was grown from Egyptian seed sent from the Chaco, and from parties who have an experience in the Liverpool cotton market we learn that the quality colour and cleanness they never saw better, even from the Soudan.

It is cheering to think after all our labours on behalf of cotton, that the industry is at last taking root in these countries. The President of Paraguay is aware of the transcendant importance of such a staple has, if we may use the expression, forced the inhabitants to plant it. Our colleagues will of course shout out against this agricultural tyranny, but we prefer to call it paternal Government, in this matter.

If the National Government of the Argentine Republic will only take the least interest in the matter, if it will only offer to that very Governor Peña, in the cotton growing provinces be compelled to see that at least 50 squares of cotton in each of their respective districts are sown, what stupendous results would not this lead to. Every cotton seed in the country sinks into insignificance compared with such a scheme.

We have 20000lbs of seed in the Government disposable, which, if the Government cannot afford to buy, we will give on the understanding that the whole or the most of it be returned to us when it shall be returned to us in cotton. We have one of the finest cotton gins in the province of Corrientes, and the seeds of four others, which we are willing to dispose of on the same terms.

The period for sowing in the interior provinces is fast approaching: the seed should be in the ground before the 1st of October—not a moment is to be lost. Who is there who will call on President Mitre's attention to the matter? More depends on the cotton crop of this republic next year than people imagine. If we want peace let us have cotton: if we want to expel revolution, sow cotton; if we want to secure the influence of trade with Europe in our favour, sow cotton; if General Mitre wishes to see the Cordova Railway built, sow cotton; if he wishes to see the industries of the interior prosperous and happy, sow cotton In the name of all that is dear to this country of our adoption—in the name of the hundreds who risked their own and fortunes to emancipate this land from colonial chains—in the name of the millions of destitute poor who inhabit it, we implore, we entreat, we demand of General Mitre to imitate the example of President Lopez, and force cotton upon us all. It may be contrary to the constitution to compel people to sow cotton, but the exigencies of the country require that some decided step should at once be taken to save the nation from ruin, and the people from starvation.

U. STATES & LA PLATA

Buenos Ayres, August 5, 1863.

In to day's 'Standard' Knicker bocker seems disposed to be patriotic, and advises Rep. to be the same I would be well if the Northerners would profit by his advice in practising this (my team) much-neglected virtue, and if he is so ardent a patriot and lover of the Northern cause—the cause of oppression—and of its institutions, why don't he not to that land of freedom to give it his all, both moral and physical, I also ask where is the boasted patriotism in the North? and echo answers—Where? Surely the popular demonstrations in favour of the South, and the necessity in a free country of arbitrary arrests for political causes do not show much I also beg to assert that Nero was not a republican. K also says that the question of nationality is one which the people are not disposed to shrink, but really K will shrinks at all more. Will K know himself as of the 'nigger worshippers?' I rather think not. His remarks about free loan proscribed are more applicable to the Federals than to the Confederates. But to come to the point, the following facts will prove that Rep's prophecy will be realized sooner than he thinks; viz., 1st, the fact of Lees having by this time invaded Maryland and Pennsylvania; 2nd, the proximate intervention of England and France; and last, though not least, the already great and daily increasing feeling in favour of Southern independence

IMPARTIAL.

SANTA FE.

We have the 'Boletin Official' of this city, of the 29th ult: It contains a decree ceding four leagues of camp to be sold for the benefit of the Cosmopolitan College. D. Geronimo Baeo has been named Prime Minister. Mr. Beyfuss, late Master of the Argentine-German School, calls Florida, Buenos Ayres, has presented a petition from Messrs. Werner and Co., asking a prolongation of their contract for peopling the Gran Chaco from Germany. Granted. Major Giles is encharged to raise two million cavalry regiments on the frontier. Garrisons of 50 to 42 men are placed in the outposts

MONTEVIDEO.

War news is at a low ebb, and party spirit runs in inverse ratio. Don Nicolas Herrera and his brother, with Dr. Ramirez, editor of the 'Siglo,' were arrested at the theatre for appearing without the usual blue ribbon ordered by Government. The fine was reduced on enquiring the lodging from a policeman: the others causing were sent to the fortress but have since been set at liberty. Flores is secured at San Antonio, about 18 leagues from Salto, where his son is badly wounded. His despatches from Salto with 3 or 4 men to ride fast, to pick up the fugitive Colorados lurking in the woods and anxious to join the rebels. Touching Dorrego's death we read that Caraballo almost took the surrender, driving a herd of oxen ahead, which created a dust that utterly concealed the Colorados: the gallant officer rescued his man at the peril of death, capturing his life in the fray, as he said by a stroke of apoplexy, but more probably of a bullet or lance. Over 30 men ordered the flag to be hoisted that must high.

A splendid album has been presented to General Mitre by his admirers, containing a C at nitrus on over Go zas, which had an excellent effect on the army. This 'Reforma' cornes and us has given the spoke to many Argentine hearts, and has made the Colorados look with a jealous eye on the Blancos. Flores' 2000 men are said by a stroke of apoplexy, but more probably of a bullet or lance. Over 30 men ordered the flag to be hoisted that must high.

Calvo's Rosario correspondent last states that the Indians have seized a convoy of carts with sugar and yerba for San Luis, near the Guardia Regular; also that Peñaloza has 2,000 men in Rojas—that Peñaloza is in a state of barbarism, and that Saudes marks his route by fire and sword.

MISCELLANY

LOSS OF THE STEAM SHIP ANGLO-SAXON.—The Court of Inquiry resumed its investigation on Saturday. Mr. Little and Mr. Fawcett were examined, but nothing important was elicited. Mr. O'Dowd said he wished to withdraw the charge of cowardice which was made against some of the crew, as the chief engineer distinctly stated that there was only one sailor arrived at Cape Race in the boat which carried only a few people. Mr. Roffle said it was most important that the fir t mate should be examined, as some suspicions had been cast upon the people in his boat by the Rev. Mr. Paton and Captain Cassidy. Mr. Aspinall said the mate would probably return to Liverpool in about three weeks: and the Montreal company were most anxious that he should be examined, as the case as it then stood was calculated to produce a most unfavourable impression on the public mind. The inquiry was then adjourned sine die.

PERUVIAN LAVERS.—A Californian paper states that advices from Tahiti, by way of San Francisco, report further seizures of Peruvian vessels engaged in stealing South Sea Islanders to sell them as slaves to work on the Peruvian guano islands. The brig Lavers of Cuppa seized a Peruvian vessel, confined the crew as prisoners, and by the aid of a white man took the ship to Oahu, and delivered her up with the French authorities at Tahiti.

On Change to-day there was a decided week feeling in the speciemarket. The non-confirmation of the Entre Rioso revolution caused a sudden reaction, and people talked seriously of the decline in ounces as if the Banda Oriental revolution was extinguished. The debate last night in Congress was also the subject of conversation. Sr. Romero's speech on the proposed bill for selling the public lands was regarded as sound and to the point.

Very little confidence, however, is reposed in the efficts of our gilded legislators, and it has been truthfully remarked that the purchase or sale of 10,000 ounces for cash, and withdrawal from circulation, would have more influence at the time than even the passing of the law in question. Still there is a decided feeling that ounces are going down, and will not touch bottom for some time. As our rank is to report what is going on, rather than offer opinion upon such intricate subjects, we merely give the present state of the market.

The Esmeralda, from Uruguay, brought down $1600 Bolivianos, $742, and 94 1/2 centaros in Mann. The Avon, in her last trip, brought down $60,0 0 mps, 76 ounces, 1 0 0 centaros and $2000 doliviancs. Besides silver in bar.
